Arkansan Killed by Electrical Line

BAYTOWN, Tex., (AP) — A heavy crane touched a 12,000 volt power line near a natural gas pipeline station yesterday and killed two men.

A third was seriously burned. D. E. Rolder, 30, Conroe, Tex., and Charles R. Huddleston, 10, a Morrellton, Ark., native living at Baytown, were killed.

Hubert Hoyt, 29, a Houston worker was hospitalized.

The men were unloading the crane when the top part of the equipment brushed against the high voltage cable.

Judge Asks Why American Can't Be Returned

By ARTHUR ARUNDEL

WASHINGTON, (UP) — A federal judge today directed U.S. authorities to show cause why an American soldier accused of slaying a Japanese woman should not be returned to the United States.

The soldier, Army Specialist 3-c William S. Girard of Ottawa, Ill., is about to be turned over to the Japanese for trial there on charges of killing the Japanese woman while she was scavenging on an Army firing range.

Federal Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy said he could not do so without a "more complete record."

Accordingly, he ordered more hearings next Monday to determine whether Girard should be returned to the United States.

The action means U.S. authorities must show cause why an order for Girard's return should not be issued.

McGarraghy signed papers whereby Girard will be retained in U. S. custody until the habeas corpus issue is resolved.

The Japanese trial is now set for June 21.

Girard's attorney, Earl J. Carroll of New York, argued that the soldier is being made "a sacrificial lamb merely for the purpose of appeasement."

U. S. Soldier Picks a Jap War Veteran

MABASHI, Japan (AP) — G. I. William Girard has picked a Japanese veteran of World War II war crimes trials to head his defense against charges of causing the death of a Japanese woman on a military firing range.

The Army announced today the Ottawa, Ill., soldier has selected Ituro Hayashi as his chief attorney.

Hayashi, defense counsel before the International Military Tribunal for the Far East from 1948-49, said he planned to meet Girard for the first time tomorrow.

He told reporters he could make no announcement of defense plans yet.

"Everything about the entire case will depend upon my discussions with Girard tomorrow," he said.

The Army announcement said Girard also had asked Maj. Stanley F. Levin, 49, Hollywood, Calif., to serve as his personal legal adviser.

Levin is a member of the judge advocate's office of the 1st Cavalry Division.

In Ottawa, Louis Girard, brother of the accused soldier, said he had hired Earl J. Carroll, a former Air Force major, who has been prominently identified with the defense of GIs overseas, to serve as defense counsel.

Carroll said in New York he would file a writ of habeas corpus in U. S. District Court in Washington today, charging the U. S. government violated Girard's constitutional rights by authorizing his trial in a Japanese court.

Carroll said he would ask the court to order the Army to deliver the soldier to Washington for a hearing.

It takes a man to admit he's wrong and a woman to prove it.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — A flat-bed truck filled with migrant farm laborers and a tractor-trailer slammed together in a fiery crash at a road intersection today and killed 17 persons.

The State Highway Patrol said the accident killed 16 but a check of funeral homes in the area disclosed 17 bodies and another at a hospital here.

The Highway Patrol said 21 persons were taken to hospitals of this area and 14 of them were in critical condition.

Fire that broke out caused most of the deaths, the patrol said.

"It looked like a ball of fire," said Joe Lozak of Brwick, Pa., who saw the crash in the rearview mirror of his potato truck.

"Men, women and children were lying all over the highway."

The patrol said 41 laborers, from several states, were aboard the truck which pulled into the path of the tractor-trailer at the intersection of Highways 301 and 102, nine miles north of Fayetteville, at 7:15 a.m.

"I didn't count them, but one of the boys said he counted 37 victims at one time, all laying down some dead and some injured, some screaming around," said W. H. Covington, operator of a country store near the road crossing.

One laborer said the workers, after camping overnight near a Mount Olive, N. C., were en route to Dunn, N. C., to harvest beans.

Gilbert Robert Peters, 25, of Route 2, Watvalpen, Pa., the tractor-trailer driver, was slightly hurt. The flat-bed truck driver was among those killed.

Covington, who said he went to the site after a couple of fellows after camping overnight near a Mount Olive, N. C., were en route to Dunn, N. C., to harvest beans.

The scene, about 50 miles south of Raleigh, was one of utmost confusion as the truck blades, injured and groaning, and ambulances siren in among patrol cars and traffic to pick up the victims.

In Chicago the National Safety Council said the number of deaths apparently set a new record for a truck-bus collision. According to its records, the Council said, the previous high was 10 killed in South Carolina in September 1950.

Supporters of Civil Rights Warn of South

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — House managers of civil rights legislation called on their supporters today to attend session faithfully so Southerners won't seize a chance to sidetrack or water down the bill.

After clearing preliminaries yesterday, the House today begins four days of formal debate on the measure. Then will come the crucial tests when the bill will be open to amendment.

Chairman Celler (D-NY) of the House Judiciary Committee, one of the sponsors of the bill, predicted it will pass by the end of next week without serious amendment.

"If the boys stand by and are assiduous."

House passage would send the civil rights bill to face even deeper or entrenched Southern opposition in the Senate.

The House Southerners, virtually unanimous in opposition to the bill, have now used practically all the delaying tactics available, and with considerable success.

Supporters had hoped for a vote in February. The Southerners can still try to dilute the bill or to load it with provisions so unpopular among its supporters that it cannot pass.

Ordeal Listening to a Child Read Who Can't

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the more desperate ordeals if parents are listening to a child read who can't read.

Now and then a small local female member of my own tribe comes up to me, carrying a heavy volume upside down in her hands.

"Read it to me," says Tracy Ann, who is almost 4 now.

This probably is a heart-warming picture to a man selling subscriptions to the book-of-the-month club. It may even brighten the view of a fanzine publisher or a magazine editor.

Old Hospital to Be Turned Into Rest Home

The Julia Chester Hospital building on South Main Street is being remodeled to make it comply with the Licensing Law and Standards for Nursing Homes and Related Institutions of Arkansas, and when the building is completed, it is planned to use the building for a Nursing, or old people's home.

Definite plans as to who will lease or operate the home have not yet been completed. The building will be ready for use about the first of August 1957.

New plumbing, wiring, and heating systems will be installed, and the building will be repainted inside and out. A fire alarm system will be an added feature.

Robert O'Neal has been engaged to supervise the construction work. Approximately $15,000.00 will be expended on the improvements.

The officers of the Hope and Hempstead County Hospital Association who are in charge of the property, wish to assure the public that this new institution will be placed and kept in first class condition, and that it will be operated under sound management. It is felt that it will add to the existing facilities that Hope already provides for the ill and aged, and that it will be one more feature offered to make Hope a better city.

The members of the associational board are: Syd McMath, Chairman, K. G. Hamilton, Sec.-Treasurer, L. Carter Johnson, Mrs. W. J. Foster, Mrs. Ernest P. O'Neal, Mrs. Kelly Bryant, Mrs. Roy Anderson, Mrs. Leo Robins, and Mrs. Arch More.

AHC Meets June 18 at Fort Smith

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Highway Commission will meet June 18 at Fort Smith to discuss additional of country roads to the state highway system.

But Chairman Glenn F. Wallace of Nashville said yesterday that the commission probably will not take action on the matter at the meeting.

Seventy-three of Arkansas' 75 counties have requested addition of up to 12 miles of road to the state system.

A new state law allows each county to add roads and the commission is supposed to act on the requests by July 1. However, the last request came in only Monday and Wallace said the commission could not act by the deadline.

Another meeting will be held July 10.

Only Yell and Jefferson counties did not say for addition of roads to the state system.

Suits Filed in Accident Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Two couples have filed a $100,000 suit against Henry F. Trotter of Pine Bluff in connection with a traffic accident on U. S. Highway 65 near Little Rock last Saturday.

In the Pulaski Circuit Court suit filed yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Dickinson of Little Rock and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Dickinson of Willow alleged that Trotter was negligent in a collision with the Dickinson car which was driven by Mrs. James R. Dickinson.

The three other Dickinsons were passengers.

It was alleged that Trotter, driving north, suddenly swerved into the wrong lane and collided with the Dickinson car.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Dickinson each asked for $25,000 for alleged personal injuries and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Dickinson each asked for $10,000 for alleged personal injuries.

U. S., Russia Far Apart as in Past

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Russia appeared to be about as far apart as ever today on the issue of calling off atomic weapons tests.

Statements made at almost the same time by Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and President Eisenhower dramatized the much-recent optimism here about the possibility of a "first-step" disarmament agreement with the Russians in the next year or so.

Furthermore, President Eisenhower's expressed interest in ending the world of atomic weapons—judged by all available evidence—seems to be a long way from realization.

In answering questions at his news conference yesterday, Eisenhower said he would "like to lay all anxiety in the word by a total and complete ban on all testing, based upon total disarmament" in the field of nuclear weapons.

But he emphasized the requirement of an effective inspection system. He repeatedly stated that so long as there remains a chance that atomic weapons would be used in war, tests must be continued.

Early in his news conference he summarized the United States policy on testing in these words: "I have tried, and this government has tried, to make the abolition of tests a part of a general system of disarmament, controlled and inspected disarmament."

Paid Vacation for Weights Officers

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The chairman of the State Police Commission sees a chance for a "paid vacation" in the proposed suspension of two indicted State Police Weights and Standards Division employees.

Chairman Hubert Mayes, in announcing that he would call a special meeting to consider the status of D. J. Raper and B. B. Hunter referred yesterday to a North Little Rock case which involves a suspension and a later restoration.

Raper and Hunter have been indicted on bribery and extortion charges by the Crittenden County Grand Jury and Gov. Orval Faubus suggested to Mayes that they be suspended pending disposition of the charges.

Involved in the charges were two alleged bribes totaling $345. Mayes recalled that Shelby Smith, North Little Rock street commissioner, got what he termed "a paid vacation" when the city's Civil Service Commission suspended him during an embezzlement indictment by the Pulaski Grand Jury.

Smith was acquitted in circuit court and the city was ordered to pay him more than $1,400 in back pay at the time of his suspension.

1,000 to Be Laid Off at Camden Depot

CAMDEN, (AP) — A Navy decision to switch from military rockets to guided missiles has resulted in notification to 1,000 workers at the U. S. Naval Ammunition Depot here that they will be laid off this month.

About 500 workers will be released June 14 and another 500 will go June 30. The Navy will keep about 400 workers at the plant.

This was revealed yesterday when George Koury, assistant plant manager, notified the 1,000 workers now employed that a contract of National Fireworks Ordnance Corp. expires June 30.

Navy Department officials have said rockets are becoming obsolete and the depot will concentrate on producing the new Sidewinder guided missile.

At its peak in World War II, employment at the depot reached 30,000. When the Korean War was at its height, a maximum of 5,000 workers were on the job.

3 States Get Braced for Flood Waters of Rampaging Red River

River to Reach 10-Year Record All Along Route

DALLAS (AP) — The flooding Red River threatened bottom land farmers in three states today, but Lake Texoma was falling and torrential rains on the Red watershed had stopped.

Texoma, which sits astride the Texas-Oklahoma border, created at 643.15 feet above sea level at 7 o'clock last night, held that level until midnight, then started falling.

It was still sending 95,000 cubic feet of water per second roaring over the spillway at Denison into the Red River, however, and the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers said the rate would be continued until the lake was down to 640, the flood pool level.

Scattered rain and thunderstorms lashed the Texas Gulf Coast today, with 1.02 inches falling at Corpus Christi, Tex.

But the Weather Bureau offered the prospect of a lull in the torrential rains that have pushed the Red River out of its banks along the Texas - Oklahoma boundary and in parts of Arkansas.

The Red River flow above Texoma fell off last night after high levels all week from the upstream.

Vanderbilt Claims Money Problems

NEW YORK (AP) — Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., says that despite his gold-plated name he is barely keeping the wolf away from his penthouse door.

Vanderbilt filed an affidavit in State Supreme Court yesterday asking for $26,000 from an alimony fund held for his fifth wife Patricia Wallace Vanderbilt.

"Despite the name which I bear," he said, "I have no significant capital or property and must support myself and pay all of my bills out of my income."

The author-traveler receives $80,000 yearly from three trust funds. But half the amount goes to a receiver to guarantee $250 weekly alimony payments to Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Vanderbilt claimed that the receiver now holds a total of $90,000. He asked that $26,000 of that be released to him.

"My financial situation is very precarious," he said. "My outside income as an author and lecturer has been greatly reduced. During the past three years, I have had large medical and legal expenditures."

"I owe substantial amounts for rent, restaurant bills and travel expenses. I have been unable to pay my secretary her salary for several months."

Justice Walter A. Lynch reserved decision.

Budget Cut Bipartisan, Says Johnson

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said today Congress is cutting President Eisenhower's budget in a "bipartisan" way and he hopes the administration doesn't inject politics into this matter.

About 300 Republicans, representing all the states, gathered, meanwhile, for a two-day strategy conference at which the administration spending program is certain to be the principal topic.

Johnson, Senate Democratic leader, spoke out in reply to President Eisenhower's news conference jibe at opposition party members.

Eisenhower said yesterday those who complain about his $71,800,000,000 budget ought to think about how much higher spending would be if budgets like that submitted by President Truman in 1953 were projected into the future.

Eisenhower said the people ought to get the "actual facts" instead of merely listening to partisan speeches.

Johnson said he couldn't find anything "partisan" about the way Congress has reduced Eisenhower's requests for new money.

"We have treated the Eisenhower budget just as we would have treated a Truman budget or a Roosevelt budget," Johnson said.

"I hope the administration doesn't inject politics into this matter."

Sen. Knowland of California, Republican leader, said in a separate interview he remains firmly convinced that the budget ought to be cut. He said he expects "quite a bit of discussion" of the matter at the Republican national conference sessions.

The conference of Republicans will talk over party finances, administrative policies and strategy for the 1958 congressional campaign. Eisenhower will address them.

Water to Hit Fulton 5 Feet Over Flood Stage

Already bank full and spreading over lowlands the Red River at Fulton is due to crest at about 32 feet probably at noon Saturday.

This is nearly two feet above the May crest which caused heavy damage to crops in this area. Flood stage at Fulton is 27 feet.

Thus a major flood will spread over the area, the Weather Bureau reports. Incidents, with the five feet above flood stage almost possible.

The Bureau predicts Little River at Whitecliffs will crest between 27 and 28 feet Friday or Saturday, somewhat lower than the May crest which covered bottomland areas.

Against the lowlands will be completely inundated in the Little River Valley.

Rain combined with the heavy outflow of Denison Dam has sent the Red on its second major flood of the year and the highest in about 10 years.

Discharge from the Denison Dam was cut back to 81,000 cubic feet of water per second after a record 105,000 cubic feet per second release on Tuesday. Water from Texarkana Dam is still being discharged at a rate of 10,000 cubic feet per second but the release was not high enough to raise the river level at Shreveport.

The river is expected to crest at Shreveport at 31 to 32 feet by Tuesday. The Red is above flood stage at all points, except Shreveport where the flood stage is 39 feet.

Nothing New in Nuclear Campaign

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is where we came in. All that's been said in the past five days — by President Eisenhower and by Russia's Premier, Nikita Khrushchev — on banning nuclear weapons sounds like the 1956 presidential campaign all over again.

Bulgaria and Eisenhower said yesterday what they said last October. And now, eight months later, the United States and Russia are no nearer agreement on banning nuclear weapons than they were then. Eisenhower made it clear again yesterday — as he did last fall — this country would continue its tests until there is a foolproof agreement on disarmament and banning nuclear weapons.

Last Sunday Khrushchev said Russia would be willing to start Bulgaria to Eisenhower. The first was in September 1956. But the catchword in Bulgaria's note was "appropriate." He talked of an appropriate agreement on the whole problem of disarmament. The trouble is, the United States and Russia have never been able to agree on what's "appropriate."

While the United States wants a disarmament agreement based on a strong inspection system which will make cheating impossible, the Russians haven't wanted any part of really tight, foolproof controls.

And yesterday a Senate subcommittee, which has been studying disarmament, reported that it had asked 40 authorities on Russia, to state their opinion on this question: Would the Russians agree to the kind of tight inspection Eisenhower wanted?

The committee said most of the 40 think the present Russian leaders not only wouldn't but couldn't. The reason: letting in foreign inspectors would weaken their grip on the country.

Eisenhower told his news conference that he said last October: that this country would like a total ban on atomic weapon testing — provided it was part of a total disarmament agreement.

Role Of 'Sister Angela' Brings Deborah Kerr Luck

Deborah Kerr, whose career in Hollywood since 1947 when she arrived from England an established star, has reached both the top and bottom of the ladder, considers her role in "Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison," coming Sunday to the Saenger theater, her good luck part. And, she says, 1956 was the best year in her life professionally. With three such pictures as "The King and I," "Tea and Sympathy" and her current Twentieth Century-Fox CinemaScope picture with Robert Mitchum as her co-star and John Houston as her director, she has become the most sought-after star in Hollywood today. She also won the 1956 Golden Apple Award by the Hollywood Women's Press Club as the most co-operative actress of the year.

Bryan could have beaten McKinley in 1900 if he had talked less about gold and used brass knuckles. "Read me this, Daddy," she orders.

"Well, once upon a time there was a baby robin that was ready to leave its nest but it was afraid to fly."

"Uh-huh."

"The mama robin told her baby, 'Kid, you got all the free worms you are going to get from this nest, so now hop out and beat your wings and fly.'"

"Uh-huh."

"But the baby robin was afraid. And then, all of a sudden, a bumblebee came along and stung the baby robin in his back porch. And the baby robin fell off the nest and fell, and fell, and then it began to beat its wings. And suddenly it was flying, just like its mommy told it that it could."

"No."

"No, that isn't what the books says. I'll read it to you."

"All right, then, what does it say?"

"Well, once upon a time there was this little bunny rabbit going hippity-hop to school and it met a strange man who put it in a pot and cooked it and then a horse came along and ate it and then a really, really great big bumblebee came along and stung it in the back porch. Isn't that a sad story, Daddy?"

"Do you like sad stories, Daddy?"

"Not particularly."

"You don't like it. Let me read this book over to you again. Once upon a time there was this little bunny rabbit who was going..."

"Daddy, wake up. Can you hold the book? My hands are tired. Well, it's a sad story. Once upon a time there was this little bunny rabbit and..."

Hippity-hop, over and over. The rabbit never gets any wiser, the bumblebee always delivers the puncheon in the end. No matter how often Daddy suggests hopelessly that the bumblebee might sting the bad man instead, and the bunny rabbit leap out of the cooking pot at the last minute and ride away safely on the horse.

"Daddy," she said indignantly, "can't you read this book? It's a sad story."

Methodists Adopt Plan of Integration

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. — A proposal to permit racial integration of the Methodist Church on the administrative level was overwhelmingly adopted here today by the Little Rock Conference, which is composed of churches in central and south Arkansas.

The vote was 175 to 14. Any opposition to the measure, a proposed amendment to the church's constitution was silent.

The Rev. Aubrey G. Walton of Little Rock told the assembly the integration proposal was "very Christian in intent and purpose."

He emphasized that the legislation was "permissive rather than mandatory" and "has nothing to do with segregation or integration in local churches."

The Methodist Church is "not a segregated body by law of the church," he said. "Wherever segregation is practiced on the local level, it is by custom rather than by church laws."

Today's action ratified the amendment which was adopted by the General Conference last year. It permits a Negro church to leave the Central Jurisdiction, composed of Negro Methodist churches throughout the nation, and join one of the six geographical white jurisdictions and the appropriate conference. In effect, it would abolish the Negro Jurisdiction.

Such action would require two-thirds vote of the church and both conferences involved.

A Methodist spokesman here said most conferences in the South have ratified the amendment and noted that the Louisiana Conference took such action last week.

The Little Rock Conference elected the trustees of Hendrix College, a Methodist-supported school at Conway. Re-named for four-year terms were The Rev. Arthur Terry, H. F. Trotter, R. P. Coyne and Duval Perkins.

The resignation of Mrs. J. F. Bates of Little Rock, who for 12 years had served conference director of children's work, was announced. She has accepted a post with the South-Central Jurisdiction.

The meeting, which opened yesterday, ends Sunday with the reading of appointments.

Starting out early on courtship, the Denver, Colo., youngsters found out there's always somebody around when two people want to be alone—in this case, Donna's dad, with a camera.

Expert Counseling Helps Teen Achieve Popularity

Dear Dorothy Dix: Some time ago you had a letter from a mother who was worried because her daughter couldn't meet and mingle with people. We had the same difficulty with our 16-year-old girl. She's an attractive, intelligent girl who tried unsuccessfully to be accepted by her schoolmates. We approached the girl's counselor at school, who took matters into her own hands. She appointed our daughter to a post in the honor society and engaged her to take on extra-curricular activities.

This year our daughter is graduating with high honors and, most important to her, the admiration of her schoolmates. Part of her trouble, which we couldn't see at home, was a shyness among contemporaries that was mistaken for aloofness. A FATHER

Dear Sir: You deserve an accolade for recognizing the importance of this problem and seeking outside help. Every successful teacher is also a counselor and can usually help resolve the problems of her students.

Any parent whose teen-age has a problem should not hesitate to call upon the faculty at school for help. It will never be refused.

Dear Dorothy Dix: At Christmas time my girl friend and I met a wonderful fellow. We both fell in love with him. Although he's very nice to us, he never gets serious. What can I do to show him how downpours. Nearly all resort areas around that lake were under water. Owners reported business had been off from 75 to 80 per cent since the middle of May.

Thousands of acres of bottomland along the Red River were under water. Farmers were preparing for a crest of 30 feet by noon Saturday at Index, Ark., some 15 miles north of Texarkana, Tex.

Civic leaders have estimated damage from the flooding has reached 25 million dollars.

The river swirled out of its banks in the Fulton and Biola areas in Arkansas yesterday. The area is about 20 miles northeast and southeast of Texarkana, where the Red River makes a huge bend on the Arkansas-Texas line.

John Mensel, Miller County, Ark., agriculture agent, said bottomland farmers were evacuating their cattle. He said standing water, although not too deep, had hurt crops.

The Weather Bureau said a low pressure area, which touched off the recent heavy precipitation in northwest Texas and southern Oklahoma, had begun to move slowly eastward at a ground level. A spokesman said the movement already had caused the rains to slacken and if it continued to move eastward, the rain would taper off "at least temporarily."

much I care for him without making a fool of myself? PAT Dear Pat: A sure way to lose a friend would be to throw yourself headlong at him. Suffer in silence unless he indicates a special feeling for you.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My boy friend got into trouble and was sent away. I've been dating other boys, but none I care about as much as Chuck. When he writes, he asks me to wait for him. Should I wait or keep looking for another boy friend. KIT

Dear Kit: Keep looking. At 16, you're not equipped to manage the emotional complexes of a boy in trouble. Talk this over with your parents.

Athletes Take Doctor Apart Over Charge

By United Press
Track stars and their coaches, including the nation's only sub-four-minute miler, took a New York doctor over the hurdles today for his "ridiculous" charge that the recent flurry of four-minute milers could be attributed to the use of stimulant drugs by athletes.

Dr. Herbert Berger, chairman of the New York State Medical Society's committee on narcotics and alcohol addiction, told a meeting of the American Medical Association yesterday that "the recent rash four-minute milers is no coincidence."

The Redlegs handed the Phils their third defeat in the last 10 games on an error, Jerry Lunsch's pinch triple and Roy McMillan's single for two 11th-inning runs against losing reliever Dick Farrell. Ed Bouchee's inside-the-park homer had given the Phils a 2-1 lead in the sixth, but Cincy tied it in the ninth, again with the help of an error. Johnny Klippstein won it in relief.

Sophomore Don Drysdale claimed his first major league shutout for the Brooks with a five-hitter. He struck out nine. Gino Cimoli drove in two runs, with his sacrifice fly breaking up a duel with Don Kaiser in the sixth. The Dodgers, winning their third in a row, tied it with three in the eighth.

An eighth-inning triple by Bob Malkmus - his first major league hit in 14 at bats - and a passed ball won for the Braves and reliever Ernie Johnson, who smacked a three-run homer. Joe Adcock and Bobby Thomson also homered for the Braves while Red Schoendienst and Hank Bauer singled twice each and Willie Mays and Whitey Lockman swatted one apiece to the Giants.

Linda McDaniel won his fifth with a five-hitter after the Cards, who hung a sixth defeat on Bobo Friend with a four-run first in-ning.

Furgal Leads Field of 130 Professionals
AKRON, Ohio, (UP) - Defending Champion Ed Furgal led a field of 130 professionals and amateurs today into the first round of the $22,000 Rubber City Open Golf tournament.

Thirty of the top 50 money winners of the PGA circuit are entered in the event, which is the final warmup for the National Open at Toledo, Ohio, next week. The field will be pared to the low 90 shooters after the second round Friday and the low 60 pros and low 10 amateurs for Sunday's final round.

The field includes Doug Ford, the top money winner with $27,931 and Arnold Palmer who is second with $15,460.

Ford won the Masters tournament and the Los Angeles Open when he hit a hole-in-one on the 18th at the Los Angeles Country Club in the final round of the Los Angeles Open at Wilmington, N.C.

Yankees Seem to Have Found Winning Ways

By ED WILKS

Of The Associated Press
It is only Cleveland's beat-up pitching staff that makes the New York Yankees look good or have them the world champions finally decided to cut the comedy and get down to business in the American League pennant race.

It wasn't until they quit home and pulled into Cleveland that the Yankees managed to regain any kind of an attack, running up 20 runs on 28 hits in two games. The champs had scored only 20 runs in the previous six games - against tailenders Baltimore and Washington - and had lost four of them.

Then they started swinging against the Indians' weary staff, overworked with the loss of injured Herb Score and Bob Lemon and without a complete game since May 26.

Early Wynn lost his sixth last night as the Yankees unloaded four home runs and 10 hits for a 13-3 breeze. It was their third in a row, but left them five games behind the first-place White Sox and also left them without catcher Yogi Berra, who suffered a broken nose when a foul tip broke his mask.

The White Sox kept their surprising pace - winning 19 of 24 with a 6-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Detroit moved into a fourth place tie with Boston by defeating Washington 3-2 in 11 innings. Kansas City defeated Baltimore 3-2.

In the National, Cincinnati's Redlegs cooled off Philadelphia 4-2 in 11 innings for a two-game lead. The Phils slipped to third, 2 1/2 back, as Brooklyn took over second with a 4-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Third-place Milwaukee, three games behind, beat New York 9-8 in a game that had nine home runs, six by the Giants. St. Louis defeated Pittsburgh 3-1.

Wynn, a 37-year-old knuckleballer, retired the first 10 Yankees before Gil McDougald belted the first of his two home runs and Mickey Mantle followed with his 12th homer in a four-run sixth. McDougald homered again in a seven-run fifth and singled in his next at bat for a total of five runs batted in. Bill Skowron homered and drove in four runs.

Bobby Shantz won his sixth with a seven-hitter, giving up homers to Chico Carrasquel and Jim Hegan.

Dick Donovan won his fifth for the White Sox, who took a 3-2 lead in the fifth with a pair of runs on Billy Klaus' two-out error and a bases-loaded walk by Roger Tom Brewer. Donovan gave eight hits - two to Ted Williams, who now is hitting .401 - but permitted only two after the third inning.

Bill Tuttle, benched for weak hitting, delivered a pinch single in the 11th to win for the Tigers. Paul Foytack won his sixth, relieving in the ninth when the Senators tied it against starter Frank Lary.

Home runs by Gus Zernial and Lou Skizas won for the A's. Arnie Portocarrero won it, with relief help.

The Redlegs handed the Phils their third defeat in the last 10 games on an error, Jerry Lunsch's pinch triple and Roy McMillan's single for two 11th-inning runs against losing reliever Dick Farrell. Ed Bouchee's inside-the-park homer had given the Phils a 2-1 lead in the sixth, but Cincy tied it in the ninth, again with the help of an error. Johnny Klippstein won it in relief.

Sophomore Don Drysdale claimed his first major league shutout for the Brooks with a five-hitter. He struck out nine. Gino Cimoli drove in two runs, with his sacrifice fly breaking up a duel with Don Kaiser in the sixth. The Dodgers, winning their third in a row, tied it with three in the eighth.

An eighth-inning triple by Bob Malkmus - his first major league hit in 14 at bats - and a passed ball won for the Braves and reliever Ernie Johnson, who smacked a three-run homer. Joe Adcock and Bobby Thomson also homered for the Braves while Red Schoendienst and Hank Bauer singled twice each and Willie Mays and Whitey Lockman swatted one apiece to the Giants.

Linda McDaniel won his fifth with a five-hitter after the Cards, who hung a sixth defeat on Bobo Friend with a four-run first in-ning.

Donovan May Just Lead Sox to Flag

By ED WILKS

CHICAGO (AP) - Right-handed pitcher Dick Donovan has found "rhythm on the mound" and it may mean a pennant title for the high-flying Chicago White Sox.

The rangy, 29-year-old Irishman from Quincy, Mass., took his fifth victory against one defeat yesterday and turned in his fifth complete game in his last six starts by fanning the Boston Red Sox 6-2 with a well-paced eight-hitter.

Ray Berres, who handles the pitchers for White Sox Manager Al Lopez, commented today that Donovan has rectified a timing fault he had last year when he had a disappointing 4-4 record for the first half of the season.

"It was a matter of rhythm," said Berres. "Dick was getting his body ahead of the ball last year. His timing was off and he was ineffective, as a result. Now he has his rhythm back and his delivery is smooth and deceiving."

Donovan agrees with Berres and adds: "I never had better stuff than I have this year."

Lopez observes: "Dick hasn't pitched a bad game this season."

His control is fine and he doesn't ever quit."

Donovan never has fanned a full-season strike for the White Sox, who obtained him from Atlanta of the Southern Assn. in September, 1954.

In 1955, Donovan had won 13 of 17 Sox decisions by July 31 and then was sidelined by a appendectomy. Some observers thought that was the killing blow to the Chi-Sox' pennant chances

Dissension Reported Over GOP Funds

WASHINGTON (UP)—Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn told President Eisenhower today that the party was having trouble raising campaign funds because Republicans "in many regions" thought his fiscal 1958 budget was too high.

Alcorn added, however, that this attitude was modified somewhat by Eisenhower's recent public addresses defending his big budget requests.

Alcorn submitted a detailed report on six regional Republican meetings.

On the optimistic side, he reported evidence that "there will be substantial gains in 1957-58 in Republican governorships and... reasonable gains in congress."

"If our state leaders are accurate, our gains in 1958 will be more than sufficient to give us control of the house, but the situation in the Senate is touch-and-go," Alcorn said.

The chairman informed the President that some of the finance chairman of the party had reported "difficulties with some large contributors because of a feeling among some of these contributors that the budget is too high."

He said the President offered to remedy for this situation and merely observed that he'd heard these reports, too.

He said Eisenhower was ready to play "a vital role" in the 1958 House and Senate races. But Alcorn did not outline the extent to which Eisenhower intends to participate in the congressional campaign.

Alcorn pointed out in connection with the budget that five of the region conferences were held before Eisenhower defended his budget. He said five of the region conferences were held before Eisenhower defended his budget in a letter to Speaker Sam Rayburn and in two subsequent television speeches.

He said there was no doubt that there was a feeling in those five conferences that the budget was too high.

too high. He said the strongest feelings were expressed by Republicans at the Midwest regional conference in Omaha, Neb.

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (UP)—Republican leaders take to President Eisenhower today a report of GOP dissension over his spending program and of the difficulties ahead in trying to regain control of Congress in 1958.

A preliminary to a party rally is here Thursday and Friday. Eisenhower arranged to see National Chairman Meade Alcorn and congressional campaign chairman at the White House.

Subsequent public statements were expected to stress party unity behind the Eisenhower legislative program and to reflect optimism about GOP chances of regaining the House and Senate.

But some Republicans said that Alcorn, Sen. Schoeppel of Kansas and Rep. Simpson of Pennsylvania view the party revolt against the President's $71,800,000 spending budget more seriously than they are willing to say publicly.

Alcorn said yesterday that he had had reports from party chairmen in some areas of the country that raising money has become more difficult because of resistance to the President's spending plans.

The money is not flowing in as rapidly as we would like," he said. He added, however, that Republicans still have a nest egg in the bank and the party is not "broke."

House Republicans were hopeful, meanwhile, that a forthcoming series of White House breakfasts would be more productive politically than was a luncheon session with Eisenhower yesterday.

French Girl Picked for Starring Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A new, sports-minded French generation is represented by Christine Carrere, gorgeous 18-year-old from Paris.

Christine, one of the loveliest Gaiety imports since the Statue of Liberty, was chosen from among hundreds of qualifiers for "A Certain Smile." The book, which concerns teen-age sex, was written by fast-driving Francoise Sagan, now recovering from a car crash.

Miss Sagan's first success, "Bonjour Tristesse," also dealt with a young girl who goes all out for romance. I asked Christine if the books gave an accurate picture of French youth.

"It was true of the generation right after the war," she remarked. "But there has been a big change in the last two or three years."

"The young people are returning to morality. They have developed a keen interest in sports. The older generations have helped to bring about the change. Also, the American influence has helped a great deal. Anything American, especially movies, is much admired by the young people of France."

Rock 'n' roll is everywhere, she said, as are the records of "Frankie Laine, Nat King Cole, Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra. Elvis Presley is not too well known, she added, and that may be an aid to Franco-American relations.

Among Christine's first duties here is to touch up her English. She learned it in school, but she's still hesitant in the language and relies on an interpreter. But, the language barrier hasn't interfered with her enjoyment of America.

Perky Peggy King Facing Movie Cameras

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It took a long time a coming, but Peggy King is now facing the movie cameras.

Pretty, perky Peggy is playing a plucky airline stewardess in Bartlett — Champion's Zero Hour. It's a hefty role for the little gal and she's pleased as punch about it.

And why not? For five years she has been queen of the test stages. It started when she landed at MGM in '32.

"It couldn't have happened at a worse time," she sighed. "The bottom was falling out if every thing in Hollywood. I went to the studio every day for a year, but all I did was take lessons. Dance lessons. Vocal lessons. Drama lessons. French lessons."

"I did eight bars if a song in a party scene of 'The Bad and the Beautiful.' Otherwise, all I did tests. And tests. And tests."

She was one of the legion of the lost at MGM that year.

"Finally they let me go," she recalled. "At MGM, they think it's the end of your life if you're dropped. It wasn't. They were giving Debbie Reynolds and Leslie Caron the big buildup, so there was no chance for me."

Peggy got married and quit her career for a year. But when the marriage didn't sing, she returned to singing. Then came that tomato sauce jingle.

"They wanted Ethel Merman to do it, but she asked for $50,000," Peggy said. "A fellow at MGM heard about it and said he knew a girl who would do it for $50."

Peggy got the job, and $85 including overtime. Out of it came a record contract and her job as George Gobel's forehead-leaning friend. The TV fame prompted interest from Paramount — and another test!

She didn't want to sign a contract and the studio had no picture for her. But — just to prove that nothing is wasted — it led to her role in "Zero Hour."

Senators to Aid Soldier in Japan Trial

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. decision to let Japan try an American soldier on homicide charges brought on a Senate investigation today along with promise of more to come.

Chairman Ervin (D-NC) summoned the Defense Department counsel, Robert Dechert, before a closed meeting of an Armed Services subcommittee to determine "if the facts justified the action taken."

And Sen. Flanders (R-Vt), his colleague on the two-member subcommittee, said that "we propose to find out who is responsible for this blunder."

Specialist 3.C. William C. Girard, of Ottawa-LaSalle, Ill., faces a Japanese trial on a charge of killing a Japanese woman, Mrs. Naka Sakai, 46, last Jan. 30. Girard was charged with shooting her while attempting to chase scavengers away from an Army firing range.

Decision to let Japanese courts try Girard was announced jointly yesterday by Secretary of State Dulles and Secretary of Defense Wilson.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said that "certainly" President Eisenhower had approved of the decision.

In addition to the two-man Senate subcommittee, the House Foreign Affairs Committee set a June 13 meeting to look into the Girard case. And a Senate Constitutional billings for physical education Hennings (D-Mo) let it be known that it has been long quietly at the whole matter of the rights of servicemen. It has called no

Benson Launches a Speaking Tour

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson starts a speaking swing into the West today in an effort to build up farm support for his ideas on revamping federal farm aid programs.

He is scheduled to address a livestock meeting at Lander, Wyo., Thursday morning and another at Wisner, Neb., Thursday night. Aides said he is making plans for a large number of other speeches in farming areas this summer and fall on the farm problem.

Both the Lander and Wisner speeches are expected to go into his contention that the flexible price support system — which the Eisenhower administration endorsed in 1954 — will fail agriculture in the future because of rising price supports.

As surpluses decline, the government must boost price guarantees for such crops as wheat, cotton, corn, rice and peanuts. Benson argues that price boosts would encourage new surpluses once present ones are disposed of.

He wants free rein to set supports between zero and 90 per cent of parity. The range now is 75 to 90 per cent.

Sharp criticism of Benson's proposals have been made in Congress.

Women Told of Their Influence

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The General Federation of Women's Clubs was told today it is considered to have "terrific influence" on Capitol Hill.

Its legislative consultant Miss Sally Butler, reporting on her Washington activities, said this word comes from the congressmen themselves, who frequently ask whether the federation would support certain types of legislation.

In addition, she said, government administrators also call for information on the federation's position and policy.

As an example, she cited a recent request from the President's citizens advisers on mutual security. Fairless Committee for the federation's stand on mutual security. She explained the federation favors doing everything it can abroad that will be conducive to understanding and mutual security.

Miss Butler told of sifting through thousands of congressional bills to follow up the stand the delegates have authorized through passage of convention resolutions.

Her report was made prior to scheduled introduction of 11 resolutions for action by some 3,000 delegates attending the 60th annual convention.

Montreal is 320 miles nearer Liverpool than is the port of New York.

Because of pollution and other causes, the Atlantic catch of shad, thus shad roe, declined from 50 million pounds in 1897 to 9,742,000 pounds in 1955.

hearings, however.

Involved in the squabble is the general policy of "statue of forces" treaties under which this government has granted many foreign nations the right to try U. S. servicemen for offenses committed while off duty, or not "done in the performance of official duty."

Tax Hikes Fail to Gain Sum Expected

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas' tax increases have failed to meet expectations and as a result some of the 1957 Legislature's construction commitments cannot be fulfilled in the current fiscal year.

Gov. Orval Faubus yesterday announced the deficiency but added that it may be possible to get the building accomplished in the forthcoming fiscal year which begins July 1.

The governor released a state comptroller's report showing that revenues were $1,400,000 short of meeting all construction commitments.

Two allotments were in the omnibus construction bill which Faubus recommended and the Legislature approved. One allotment's projects total $5,600,000 and can be financed right away. But those in the second allotment, totaling $1,400,000, cannot be met now.

It had been estimated that tax increases passed by the Legislature would bring in enough money between Feb. 15 and July 1 to fulfill these commitments. After July 1, extra tax money goes into larger budgets — mostly for welfare and public schools.

April collections which included the 1-cent sales tax boost fell under expectations by $500,000 and in May the deficiency was about $100,000.

Heavy rains and floods which curtailed business and farming operations during the two months were blamed for the income slump.

Inserted between the two construction allotments in the omnibus construction bill was a 2½ million dollar item which had to be collected and put aside before the second allotment could be distributed.

This 2½ million dollars is a kind of "buffer" to insure that state agencies will get full operating budgets in 1957-58.

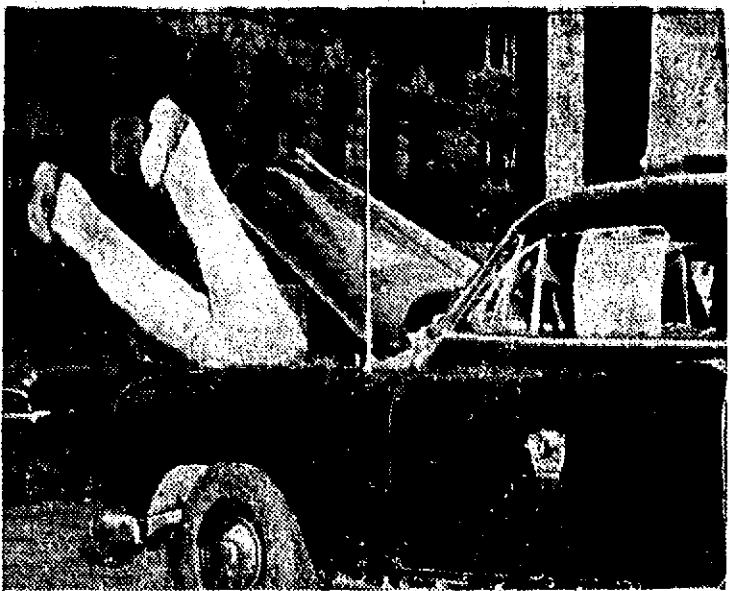

The state comptroller's office says that by June 30 — end of the current fiscal year — THE STATE should realize about 2 million of this 2½ million dollars. Then the amount set aside this year can be used to fulfill all construction requirements.

Projects in the second allotment which must be suspended at least temporarily include:

State Hospital $500,000, Booneville Sanatorium $100,000, National Guard Armories, $225,000, White Boys Industrial School $50,000, University of Arkansas Animal Science Building $500,000 and Capitol remodeling $25,000.

All but the last two of these will get money from the first allotment.

"DIVE-IN" GAS STATION—An enterprising Willie-Barre, Pa., gas station owner stuck a dummy head first into the motor of a car and left the auto parked in front of his station. Passers-by gawked, came in for a close-up, saw the dummy—and also saw the gas station. End result: publicity.

THE STORY: When Dr. Kurt Lillard was convicted of murder, his spot on the staff of a clinic in a small Missouri town was offered to Dr. Garde Shelton. Making a trip to look over the town, Garde is impressed by two young women he saw at the yacht club on the river.

CHAPTER III

Since Flynn had spoken of the yacht club group as if Garde would take a place among them, he must try to locate himself in that as-yet-unfamiliar setting.

He leaned against the fence, smoked his pipe and pictured himself as he was, standing there, doing those things. He was tall and dark. Dr. Shelton was a too intent young man, and his voice was deep. Charitably one could say that his voice vibrated. As a matter of fact, it grated or rasped. He was a doctor, and a good one. Children liked him, largely, Garde knew, because only with children did he easily drop his defensive attitude; with them he was natural, warm and friendly.

With others, life had taught him wariness. His boyhood had been meager. His mother was now, and had been, a schoolteacher who had taught her two sons morals but who had endowed them with no gift for beauty because she herself had none. That gift, the world and its people were something to suspect and to fight. So he believed, Beth Shelton.

Garde knew that he had missed a lot of life. In the 35 years already passed by him, he had had to make his own adjustments to the world around him; he had had to work his own way through school, taking longer for his medical education than did other men.

With the look of a man who has reached a decision not entirely to his liking, he started the car and turned its wheels away from the fence, backed, then straightened out so that he could go down along the short street of tall houses.

This time Garde found the clinic without any difficulty. He drove in between the gateposts and parked with assurance in one of the lines marked out for "Visiting Doctors."

He touched his tie and glanced at his watch — 11:30. Not a bad hour. Still with assurance he opened the front door and went into the clinic vestibule. Yes, it was much as he had pictured. A light, airy-seeming place, with a crisp cleanliness about it. This central hall terminated in wide doors for receiving cases. A curved desk at the right was equipped with a patient register, a bowl of pink flowers and a pleasant-faced receptionist. Some visitors sat in an alcove to his left; down the hall a nurse pushed a wheelchair in which sat a woman.

Garde went over to the desk. "I'm Dr. Shelton," he said in his deep voice. He took out his wallet and opened it to his identification card. "I would like to see any of the staff doctors. I came here at the suggestion of Dr. Flynn with the possibility of handling the pediatric work."

A shadow crossed the girl's face, but she said quietly, "I'll see who's free. I believe you are expected, Dr. Shelton."

She had looked him over while speaking, and of course Garde knew that she was doing it. He'd be "looked over" regularly, and judged against that other man, the one he was planning to replace.

The girl did things with plugs at a small switchboard, then smiled at Dr. Shelton. Dr. Ruble, she said, would be right over.

Garde was nodding in approval when he heard his own name spoken. He turned to face a tall and smiling man. A handsome chap with white dusting his black hair, a small, clipped mustache and a skin dark from sun rather than by complexion. He wore crisp whites and he was extending a cordial hand. "I'm Ruble, O.B., doctor," he said warmly. "And I am glad to see you."

"Dr. Flynn suggested that I come up . . ."

"Yes, he told us that you had to be sold on our proposition. It was more a matter of adjusting my own ideas; I had somewhat expected to continue on his service at Children's. This — would be a change from that idea."

"Yes, it would. We have a doctors' room close by — if you'd care to . . ."

And of course Garde went with him, down the hall, past the desk and call board.

He opened a flat gray door labeled "Doctors. No Admittance" and stepped aside for Garde to precede him into a pleasant room furnished with leather chairs and two couches; there were bookshelves and restful colors. An open door showed a locker room and a shower stall. Ruble closed this door and waited for his guest to select a chair, then he took another and put his feet up on the coffee table.

"You're not as young as we feared . . ." he said ingenuously, then laughed at himself. "Dr. Flynn calls you 'the boy,' and we took him seriously."

"I'm 35," said Garde. "I had to work my way through school, and it took longer."

"War service."

"No. I was exempted. I'm on stand-by reserve, but don't expect to be called." He shook his head at the offer of cigarettes. "I generally smoke a pipe — and it's an outdoor sort of instrument."

Ruble nodded. The two men still were watchful of each other. Like two pups, thought Garde, our neck-hair bristled, and our tails stiff.

CHAPTER IV

Garde leaned back and listened intently. Ruble was giving a brief regatta of the staff members. Dr. Cornely, the surgeon — wife, two daughters. Dr. Windsor — he'd done some interesting medicine in Austria immediately after the war

Methodists to Take Integration Step

— he was their internist, and married. No children.

"I'm Bob Ruble. And I do n.b. and g.c. Came here after service, though there I confined my work to dependents' families. I have four children and a big old house I am remodeling, doing most of it myself, even to a swimming pool which leaks. But we have the river." He smiled.

His expression sobered. "Our fourth member, of course, is the man you would replace. Dr. Kurt Lillard, the old man's son. You know his story . . ."

"Sketchily," said Garde. "I remember the headlines in the paper, and Dr. Flynn gave me some details."

"Yes. Well — briefly — last September, Kurt was accused of having murdered a screwball kid he'd found stabbed to death on the clubhouse pier."

Garde's memory saw again, in a swift flash, the diamond sparkle of the river, that long pier, the tied up boats — the girls . . .

... made his mistake in not running. Ruble was continuing in a rather angry way of speaking. "But he reported the thing to the police, after determining that the kid was dead. Got a little blood on himself doing that. Anyway, as a reward, the police pinned the thing on him. Incredibly the court convicted Kurt Lillard of murder! Of all people! I say incredibly, though even I could see that the testimony couldn't be argued with."

"Five years before, you see, Kurt had given this same kid a mauling over some car incident. And only three days before he was found dead, Kurt had knocked Ben down for kissing Nan Stanfield. So, when the big sap reported to the police that he'd found Ben already dead — Personally I could think he did find him. And already dead."

"But the prosecution brought out testimony which couldn't be argued against, and Kurt's own story . . . Oh, he said he heard a shot, but no gun or wound was found. And then, of course, he was down at the pier with another woman — Kurt, I mean."

Dr. Ruble sat morose, staring at the window, his head wagging in disbelief. When he recovered, he spoke with renewed anger. "If that same woman had gone on and married Kurt 10 years ago, none of this would have happened."

Garde's question was unspoken, but it attracted Ruble's attention. "Yes," he confirmed, "they were engaged, and she broke the thing off to have a career. Kurt wasn't through his training then, but if they had married he'd have been a man settled down with a family by the time Ben Laurent got old enough to need killing."

Dr. Ruble was as handsome and as self-assured as any man Garde had ever known. He had an eight-year record of never having lost a mother in childbirth. The surgeon — Dr. Cornely — a big, red-headed man, and probably an excellent surgeon, was just as probably a man with very definite opinions on all subjects and not one to brook argument about things like the right kind of power mower and allergic complications in surgery. For the record, Garde Shelton felt pretty strongly about his own opinions.

Then there was the third man, Windsor. Garde had liked him least of the three. The man was thin, with the sun-browned skin which seemed to be a must in Bayard — though, of course, Dr. Cornely was ruddy rather than brown, as red-haired people are apt to take their sun. Windsor had snow-white hair, cut into a very short crew; he had a mocking smile and a certain elegance which bothered Garde. If it was inbred, he could take it. If it was acquired, well . . .

Of course there was also the question of how much these men had liked him. Windsor had put the offer flatly into words. "We hope you'll come back, doctor."

He drove straight to his mother's apartment and found Beth just in from school, tired as usual and about to have a cup of tea. Even as she kissed him, she asked questions.

So he sat down on the hassock at her knee and put his hand on the chair arm. "Listen, Malber. I have a job, a new one. I am going to take a position as pediatrician at the clinic at Bayard. Mo. That's about 50 miles north of here. It's a little town, but with a lot of people living on farms and small estates around it."

"I'm to go there next month, and a furnished house will be made available to me for the first year. I wondered if you'd want to keep house for me at least for the summer."

Finally she exhausted her questions — or her breath — and leaned back to think about the whole matter. But almost a once she struggled to sit erect. "Garde," she cried. "Did you say Bayard?"

"Yes."

"But, Garde!" Her eyes popped with excitement. "That's where we were!"

He stood up, tall and straight, towering above her. He spoke sternly. "That is where I'm going to work," he said flatly.

Contract Let to Complete Highway 24

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., (UP) — The Arkansas Highway Commission today received an apparent low bid of $508,952 for an important link in the Hot Springs-Benton Highway.

Known as the Lonsdale east and west road, on Highway 88, the 19.2 mile project will begin near Morning Star, east of Hot Springs, and extend eastward along the newly graded location to the vicinity of the junction with the future highway 67, southwest of Benton.

The apparent low bidder for the job of surfacing the first section of the new highway was Reynolds and Williams of Little Rock. The successful bidder will be required to complete the work in 270 working days.

The commission opened bids on seven road and bridge construction projects totaling $1,937,517.

The largest single project was on highway 64, in Johnson county. The apparent low bidder was the D. F. James Construction Co., Inc., of Little Rock, with an offer of $342,389.

The work consists of 10.6 miles of widening and resurfacing with asphalt concrete hot mix base and surface courses, and extending two bridge-length culverts on the Clarksville-Piney road.

Other projects and the apparent low bids:

Jefferson County — 1.8 miles double bituminous surface treatment and one precast slab span bridge on the junction highway 65-north road, state Highway 81, C. F. Steed of Springhill, La., $29,418.

Hempstead County — 5.2 miles single bituminous surface treatment and one precast slab span bridge on the Nashville-Prescott road, state Highway 24, R. H. Davis of Stamps, $139,837.

Saline County — 7.7 miles grading, minor drainage structures, one reinforced concrete bridge and two bridge-length culverts on the Paron-Junction Highway 70 road, state Highway 9, D. B. Hill Construction Co., of Little Rock, $153,871.

Prairie and Leno County — 8 miles double bituminous surface treatment and two bridge-length culverts on the Hickory Plains-Junction Highway 31 road, state Highway 38, Freshour Corp., of Sweet-home, $239,228.

Washington County — 6.7 miles single bituminous surface treatment, two slab span bridges and one bridge-length culvert on the Dutch Mills-Cane Hill road, state Highway 45, Forsgren Bros., of Fort Smith, $199,993.

There were only two independent nations, Turkey and Persia, in the Near East at the end of World War I. Today there are ten.

JAM SESSION—It's no surprise that the sound coming from this horn made from an elephant's tusk has been likened to the trumpeting of an enraged elephant. The "musician" is a Madubu tribesman giving out with hot licks at Leopoldville, Belgian Congo.

Turbulent Weather Still in Arkansas

By The Associated Press.

Arkansas waited today to see weather for the stat.

Yesterday, turbulent weather was plentiful.

A group of picnicking civic club members near Magnolia saw a big tornado funnel in the air and watched it swirl along in the distance for about eight minutes before it broke up.

Shreveport authorities also reported the same tornado funnel and placed it a few miles north of Haynesville, La., which is just below the Arkansas-Louisiana line.

No damage from the twister was reported.

Although this was the only tornado funnel sighted, a large part of southwest Arkansas was under a severe weather warning from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. The funnel was seen about 30 minutes before the alert expired.

A squall line traveled across central Arkansas, bringing rainstorms. Little Rock caught a hard thundershower which dumped more than half an inch of rain in less than one hour and crashed dash floods in several parts of the city.

An elderly patient at the Benton unit of the State Hospital was killed by a lightning bolt yesterday afternoon as he stood in a clump of trees, watching an approaching storm cloud.

Hospital authorities did not identify the 65-year-old victim.

A thunderstorm at Bono in Craighead County caused several rack bed washouts on the main line of the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad and the route was closed shortly after noon yesterday.

Railroad officials thought the line would be open again today.

A 4-man team has started a survey to determine the amount of claim under Arkansas is entitled to claim under Public Law 875 as a result of being declared a disaster area.

The team toured Madison County yesterday, and was scheduled to visit Benton County today.

Gov. Orval Faubus was expected to make an initial request for federal aid money today, basing the request on flood damage reports already received.

Mrs. Clifford Maddeford, of Marriott's Cove, Nova Scotia, is a meticulous housewife. She saved the combings from her dog, Lassie Amber, part setter, part collie; spun them into thread for a prize winning sweater.

Balloon Shot to Make 45 Experiments

LAS VEGAS, Nev., (UP) — An Atomic Energy commission device was fired at 4:48 a.m. PDT today from a platform suspended from a captive balloon ground-anchored 500 feet above YUCCA Flat in the Nevada desert.

The shot was a device of the Livermore (Calif.) scientific laboratory with 45 experiments taken in connection with its firing, including the use of a number of rabbits to determine sensitivity of eyes to the blast.

It was the first time the AEC ever had detonated one of its family of nuclear weapons from a balloon. Veteran atomic observers described it as one of the smallest ever exploded with a probable yield of only one kilton or less.

The fireball was visible for less than one minute in the half overcast skies just before dawn broke at the AEC's testing grounds some 75 miles northwest of here.

Observers on Mt. Charleston, some 45 airline miles from the site, said no mushroom cloud was apparent. Within minutes all apparent trace of the explosion had disappeared.

The AEC had announced that

5th Amendment to Get a Test

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (UP) — It will mean a rousing — maybe an historic — court fight if swing senators make good their threat to test whether anyone has the right to use the Fifth Amendment as Dave Beck Jr., used it yesterday.

The Constitution's Fifth Amendment says a man can't be compelled to give evidence which might incriminate him. That was Beck's excuse for refusing 130 times to answer questions by the Senate Rackets Committee.

But the way a witness — before a congressional committee or a federal grand jury — invokes the amendment to duck questions can be pretty tricky business. The Supreme Court has given various rulings, oft, and against people who used this amendment, depending on how they did it.

Young Beck even went to the extent of using the amendment to avoid saying he knew his own father, Dave Beck Sr., president of the Teamsters Union, who earlier had made a similar across-the-board use of the Fifth Amendment.

fallout was expected to be very small and radar cloud-tracking experiments swung into action to trace the movement of any radiation-laden clouds.

Only once previously has a device of such slight force been exploded. Today's blast, equal to approximately 1,000 tons of TNT, was about 1-20th the size of the a-bombs dropped on Japan during World War II.

In connection with today's test some 16 military effects experiments were carried out, including tests of new field radiological safety equipment involving small numbers of military personnel.

Closed-circuit television cameras monitored the blast closeup for the AEC, keeping scientists informed as to the exact position of the balloon at all times as it swung at its moorings.

ment. And young Beck's cousin Joseph McEvoy, questioned yesterday, did the same as the Becks. Incensed senators accused the cousins of misusing the amendment.

Committee Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) was so sure he said: "I think we've got to find out — and I know of no way to find out except to place it before a court — who is right in this procedure. If the courts sustain your position, then America is in great danger."

He ordered his staff to start the machinery for a test. This would require first a congressional citation of the younger Beck for contempt. Then if indicated he'd face a court trial. If convicted, he would, no doubt, go up to the Supreme Court for a ruling.

A man can't use the Fifth Amendment to avoid answering questions which might incriminate someone else. He can use it only for his own protection. That's already settled. But this is where the trouble begins.

He can't, just as it suits him, answer some questions but not others. When employing the amendment against a specific question, he must have reason to believe an answer to that specific question might lead to his undoing.

On the other hand if he answers one incriminating question, he can't then start ducking behind the amendment to avoid answering others. The Supreme Court has already ruled that in the case of a Colorado woman.

A federal grand jury there was investigating the Communist party. She admitted she was the party treasurer and kept its records. She answered that much freely. Then she was asked to whom she had turned over the books.

She took the Fifth Amendment. She was given four months in jail for contempt. The Supreme Court upheld her conviction, ruling her first answers were incriminating. Once she started answering inci-minating questions, the court said she couldn't then start using the amendment to avoid answering others.

That was in 1951. Justice Black dissenting from the majority opinion, said his decision created a dilemma for witnesses in the future.

They might find themselves held in contempt if they invoked the amendment too soon — that is, against questions later considered nonincriminating by a court — or might lose the amendment's protection if they answered a single question.

Thus a terrific burden is placed on a witness trying to thread his way between questions he thinks might incriminate him and questions which a court might later say were innocent enough for him to answer.

At the same time a congressional committee or a grand jury may ask only questions which are pertinent to its inquiry.

In the case of the two Becks and McEvoy — a highly tangled affair that involved income taxes, use or misuse of union funds, perhaps conspiracies — the lawyers seemed to think the only safe course was to plead the Fifth Amendment against almost every single question.

But was it the safe way? The Fifth Amendment was intended to be used thoughtfully and only when necessary. If young Beck and McEvoy are cited and convicted, the court will have to give what will probably be a brand new ruling.

Bud Denies He Made Statement

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UP) — Coach Bud Wilkinson, Oklahoma denied yesterday he had made the statement he would uphold the Southwest Conference letter of intent if the Southwest Conference would do the same for Oklahoma.

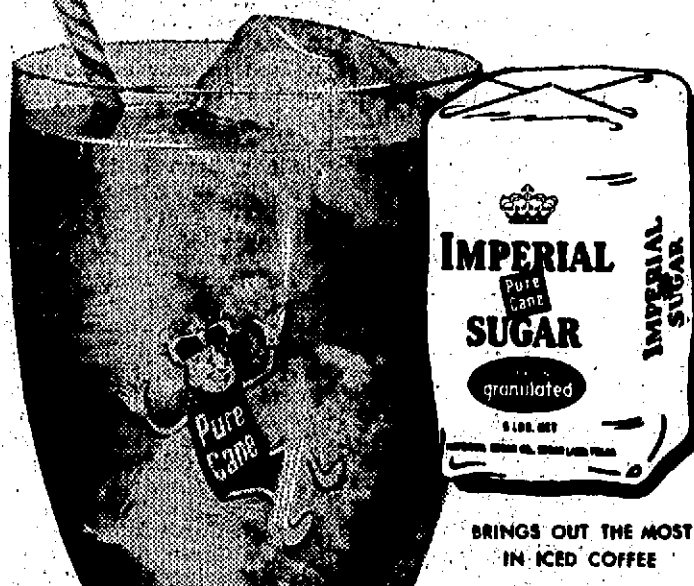

Wilkinson was quoted at Dallas that if Southwest Conference schools would not try to talk to boys going to Oklahoma under a letter of intent he would do the same for the Southwest Conference.

Before 1,000 persons at the annual Red Raider Club banquet at Texas Tech, Wilkinson declared he and his staff were interested in any boy wanting to go to Oklahoma but "that we don't want him unless he wants to go."

"IT'S QUICK DISSOLVING"

"We Were Amazed"

Says CAR LIFE,
The Family Auto Magazine

"We were amazed as we drove the Special four-door hardtop, to find that an automobile could be completely changed yet retain so much of its character. The 1937 models have all the familiar, solid Buick virtues."

THE ABOVE brief clipping tells you worlds about the '37 Buick.

It tells you we went all out to make this car completely new—yet we didn't sacrifice a single Buick virtue.

So you still get that unmistakable Buick styling.

You still get that big-car room and comfort and that solid Buick quality.

But you also get so complete a change in the vitals of this car that the driving of it is a wondrous new experience.

You get a brilliant brand of performance that's different from anything else that goes on four wheels.

Words won't describe it. Telling you there's an all-new engine, an instant new Dynaflo,* a completely new power train—none of that will convey this news to you.

What you have to do is get in this car and drive it. Drive it around the block, through town, out on the highway. Actually feel what happens when you press the gas pedal, turn the steering wheel, touch those powerful new brakes.

Then—and not till then—will you know why folks call this "the dream car to drive."

The best advice we can give you, by far, is this: Ask your dealer for a trial run today.
